A "fakir" victimized a number of Yonkers people yesterday. He drove into Getty Square and Soon collected a crowd by selling finger rings at 25 cents each, and then redeeming them for 50 cents. A combination of a gold watch and a dollar bill, with two extra gold watches and chains thrown in, was offered for $10. In a short time he had sold to ten customers. Just before it was time for a train to start he drove away toward the Hudson River Railroad station. The crowd then discovered that their purchases were valueless and tried to overtake the carriage, but the "fakir" had too much of a start and caught his train. The trick was played so cleverly and so quietly that the swindler was out of town almost before the crowd realized they had been victimized.

NEW-ROCHELLE.

"The New-Rochelle Paragraph," which also prints there, came out yesterday in both editions for Mc-Kinley and Hobart and sound money. "The Parawestchester County. "The Paragraph" explains its attitude in the following excerpt, taken from the editorial columns:

"The Paragraph" will enter this campaign prepared to do its utmost to elect the Republican ticket. Had it existed in the time of secession it would have been its duty to stand by the Union. To-day its duty to stand by the Union. To-day its duty to stand by the Union is just as pialn. If we can win a single-tote for McKinley and honest financial policies our reward will be worth the labor. McKinley and Hobart represent the unprecedented prosperity of the Harrison Administration. No agency that will help bring back the confidence of the American Nation, not even this humble newspaper, can be negleited. We have found again and again that the weekly newspaper was closer to the voters and carried a greater influence at the polis outside the citles that the great city newspapers. The local newspaper prepresents the voter in his home. The majority for McKinley and Hobart must be made as decisive as possible.

BASEBALL PLAYED BY THE BLIND.

From The Boston Transcript.

Professor R B. Huntoen, of the Kentucky School, describing baseball among the blind, says. The braseball game differs, of course, in many of its details from the regular games. The diamond is not of regulation size but is of regulation form. The distance between bases is but forty feet. The fielders are stationed the same as in a National League game, with the exception that there is a right shortstop, thus making ten men to a side. In the outfield, in public games, there is an unlimited number of players, each taking a turn at the bat, first moving up one position whetever a batsman is put out. The catcher sits on the ground, well back from the home plate, and, to guard axainst injury, he wears a mask and a chest protector. His position is such that when a pitcher delivers a bail it strikes the ground just between the knees and is taken on the short bound.

The batsman takes his position at the plate with a heavy flat bat, somewhat like those used in cricket. The umpire, who must be a man of unimpaired vision, calls upon the pitcher to get ready, and then clearly sings out "One, two, three." At the word three the pitcher must loyally deliver the ball. He pitches in the slow, undershand way peculiar to the game twenty-five or thirty years ago, the blea being to beliver a bail that can be hit by the batsman, who, standing there in the darkness, with a sharpened sense of hearing and a wonderful conception of the time that must claims before the ball reaches him, is prepared to strike.

If the batsman should miss the ball bounces into the catcher's lap, and is returned to the pitcher's by a single toss with a precision that is wonderful. When the ball is batted the umpire calls out quickly to the fielier in whose direction it is travelling, and he, guided by the sense of hearing, either catches the ball or follows it in its course through the grass. Six strikes are an out. In fielding any number of bounds are permitted. If the hatied ball is a "hot bounds are permitted."

in Madrid, between an attaché of the Russian Embassy and two dog-catchers, backed up by the police. By order of the town-bigwigs, dog-catchers perambulate Madrid once a day and take up all dogs either unmuzzled or not held in leash. Hence, when they saw a dog about the size of a couple of fists without a muzzle and tucked away under a gentleman's arm they made a dash for it. The owner of the animal, however, being a Muscovite of a muscular type, knocked his assailants about so severely that they called in the ald of the police, who "went for" the gentleman, though he had previously said who and what he was, and wrested the dog from him. He received several blows and scratches. The authorities have acted with commendable promptness in the matter. Eight policemen are dismissed, one inspector loses his rank, the two dog-catchers are discharged and a fine is imposed.
